Hill Ward Henderson is pleased to support and participate in the upcoming 2017 Tampa Bay Heart Walk to benefit the American Heart Association (AHA). The firm boasts a team of 25 walkers and runners participating in the event to be held on November 11 at Raymond James Stadium in Tampa. Fundraising activities and programs have been implemented at the firm over the past month to raise awareness and funds to support and help fight against heart disease and stroke.

The AHA is the nation's oldest and largest voluntary organization dedicated to fighting heart disease and stroke. AHA is committed to bettering the lives of all Americans by offering public health education, funding innovative research, fighting for stronger public health policies, and providing critical tools and information to save and improve lives. AHA fulfills its mission to build healthier lives by providing science-based treatment guidelines to healthcare professionals to help them provide quality care to their patients, as well as educating lawmakers, policymakers and the public as the AHA advocates for changes to protect and improve the health around the country.
