Our Consumer Products Liability Group focuses on defending manufacturers, distributors and retailers of consumer products in a variety of products liability matters.

Attorneys in the firm's Consumer Products Group have successfully represented major cigarette manufacturers, mobile phone and electronics companies, healthcare product manufacturers, and a number of other Fortune 500 companies. As the legal and regulatory environment in which our clients operate continues to pose more challenges, our Consumer Products Group continues to grow accordingly.

Our attorneys work closely with our clients to develop the best strategy for the successful and economical resolution of each case. Although our focus is always on resolving matters as quickly and efficiently as possible, our attorneys have the detailed knowledge and extensive practical experience necessary to handle these consumer products liability claims through trial and appeal in both the state and federal court systems.
