Products Liability

Unfortunately, claims brought against companies for personal injury or wrongful deaths are often seen within the business arena of industrial and commercial products. At Hill Ward Henderson we frequently represent product manufacturers, parts manufacturers, distributors, wholesalers and resellers in claims relating to products they make, sell, or in which they are directly associated. These claims regularly relate to commercial and industrial settings, which are often places of employment.

The firm's experience in this area is broad and spans many years. Highlights of this work include, but are not limited to, the defense of manufacturers against claims that their products caused leukemia as well as those arising out of death from exposure to benzene.
