NONCOMPETE LITIGATION

Given the increased mobility of employees and the competitive nature of today's business environment, covenants not to compete have become a common component of employment contracts and business purchase agreements.

Hill Ward Henderson's Noncompete Litigation Group regularly assists clients in both prosecuting and defending actions to enforce non-competition agreements and other forms of restrictive covenants, in state and federal courts and in arbitration proceedings. Our attorneys also advise and counsel clients in anticipation of litigation or potential litigation and routinely assist in preparation of non-compete agreements and other forms of restrictive covenants.
