PATENT LITIGATION

Hill Ward Henderson has extensive experience in patent litigation, including representing both plaintiffs and defendants in federal district courts. Our team of litigators has successfully represented clients in a broad range of technical fields, including computer technology, construction methods and technologies, medical devices, pharmaceuticals, biotechnology, electronics, and mechanical devices.

We work closely with our clients to develop effective litigation strategies that align with their business goals and objectives. Our attorneys have a deep understanding of the legal and technical complexities of patent litigation and can provide valuable guidance on issues such as claim construction, infringement, validity, and damages.
