Hill Ward Henderson is proud to announce that attorney Allison Stevenson has been selected as a "fellow" for The Florida Bar Association's William Reece Smith, Jr. Leadership Academy.

This multi-session training program is designed to develop and propel lawyers into significant leadership positions not only in the legal profession but in their communities. The year-long program focuses on developing skills and networking opportunities while putting their new skills to use in various projects selected by the class.

Stevenson's practice primarily involves representing product manufacturers in claims involving personal injuries and wrongful death, as well as marketing, advertising, and trade libel claims. Her academic research is devoted to issues involving pay equality and workplace diversity. Stevenson is the co-chair of the National Association of Women Lawyers (NAWL) Advocacy Committee and the NAWL Pay Equity Task Force, and has published and contributed to works centered on reducing the disparity in pay and mentorship among genders and ethnicities in a wide array of professions.
