B. Braun's Tom Black (c) gives the contract manufacturer's perspective, with Marcus Boggs (r) and Reid Haney.

Hill Ward Henderson Shareholder R. Reid Haney recently served on a panel of industry professionals at the Florida Medical Device Symposium. The panel discussions explored the critical Original Equipment Manufacturer (OEM) - supplier relationship and surveyed the regulatory, contractual and industry issues and trends surrounding the OEM-supplier relationship and supply chain integrity. The panel also addressed risk sharing and shifting and how the FDA expects OEMs to manage and monitor suppliers.

The Florida Medical Device Symposium is Florida's premier event for medical device manufacturing firms, featuring nationally recognized speakers, expert panels on regulatory issues, industry trends and legislative updates. Mr. Haney served on the panel alongside Tom Black, VP of OEM Sale and Marketing with B. Braun Medica Inc., Marcus Boggs, President and CEP of CEA technologies and Fran Stockwell, VP and Chief Underwriting Officer with Medmarc.
